Christiane Nord Identifying communicative functions, 1

Christiane NordHeidelberg/Vienna. As a text-type in their own right, titles and headings are intended to achieve six functions: distinctive, metatextual, phatic, referential, expressive, and appellative. Taking as a point of departure the hypothesis that translated texts have to "function" in the target situation for which they are produced by serving the purpose (s) they are intended for (which may or may not be the "same" as those of the source text), it is argued that the translator has ...

Christiane Nord Introduction It can be regarded as widely known that, from a functionalist point of view (cf. Reiss/Vermeer 1984, Nord 1991), the translator's decisions in the translation process should be governed by the function or communicative purpose the target text (TT) is intended to fulfill in a particular target-culture situation.
