How The Birds Got Their Colours - YouTube

How the Birds Got Their Colours tells many stories, but what it impresses upon me most is the idea of identity. It is when the birds receive their splashes of colour – the pink of the Galah and the mixed palate of the Rainbow Lorikeet – that they finally become themselves. They know who they are and take pride in their unique beauty. *

The vast majority of our American birds got their common names more than a century ago, and so any of us living now will have a hard time getting a species named after us unless we start making some changes. (Which we should, but I'll get into that later.) But immortality only works if people actually remember who you are.
